ALLIES FORM 10-MILE FRONT IN HOLLAND

Salem Launches Its Community Chest Drive For $43,970

The War Today...

By DeWitt MacKenzie
AP War Analyst

ONE OF THE MOST URGENT facts confronting both sides in the European war is that this is the 18th day of October. This means that in two or three weeks, under normal conditions, autumn rains will begin in earnest. A cold front will turn the battlefields of the eastern and western theatres into morasses which will bog down armies. Storms will impair the efficiency of the air fleets either for fighting or as the eyes of the ground forces.

That's to say, if Europe gets its usual autumn, the Allies have a forecast of so to launch offensives to break Hitler's frontier defenses and set their armies ranging through the Reich. And by the same token, this is the critical period in which the Nazi dictator must use every means available to stand off his enemies until the bad weather comes to his aid.

All this fits in with the German insistence that both the Western Allies and the Russians are on the verge of great new offensives. Indeed, Berlin says the Red armies already have struck. These Nazi claims aren't surprising, for this not only would seem to be the appointed hour for a general Allied assault but signs are plentiful that the United Nations are about to tighten their vast military ring about the Hitlerites.

The western front is in a ferment. The Germans, acting on their own forecast, have been counter-attacking heavily along the crucial northern flank of Gen. Eisenhower's armies. These attacks are calculated to keep the Allies off balance and so hamper their launching of an all-out drive.

The American and British armies have increased their pressure on the Nazis, especially along the 50 mile front extending from Aachen up to the Dutch town of Venray. And the Germans say that a bit further north in the Nijmegen-Arnhem area of eastern Holland, at the extreme left of the Allied flank, the British Second army is at the ready.

COUNCIL GIVES WILSON RIGHT TO USE LABOR

Long Discussion Ends In New Legislation With Two Dissenting

After nearly two hours of heated discussion, city council last night altered existing legislation requiring the employment of two men at the city water works pumping station at all times by enacting legislation, by a vote of four to two, which allows the service director to use laborers now used there at his discretion in water works department jobs.

The former ordinance specified that two men, an engineer and a fireman or helper, must be on duty at all times in the pumping station. The new measure gives Service Director Frank Wilson the authority to remove one or all of the helpers at any time and use them wherever he deems necessary.

Councilman Fred Shaffer, spokesman for the opposition to the bill claimed the requirement set up in the old legislation was so arranged as to have the extra man present at all times to guard against possible emergencies and hazards existing on the job.

Explains Work
In support of Shaffer's claim, John H. Horn, an engineer at the pumping station, told council members of the hazards and emergencies that arise on the job which he said, required the presence of an additional man to assist the engineer and to be there in case something should happen to the operator.

Horn pointed out the fire alarm system, changing water supply and pressures, dangers in turning on and off city lights, work involved in firing the emergency steam boilers and the checking required when an electrical storm cuts off the power in the city, as some of the hazards and conditions which require two men at the station.

Councilmen Arch Wentz and Harry Vincent, members of the water committee, said the measure was being enacted at the request of the service director and Wentz asserted that he thought it "improper for councilmen to go over the head of the department manager to bring employees into the deliberations of council, which, he claimed, in this case dealt not with administrative difficulties but simply with whether or not council should tell the director when and where he should use his department employees.

Directors Duty
He cited the state code, which lays the responsibility of the proper operation of the department

HURRICANE MOVES TOWARD FLORIDA

(By Associated Press)
MIAMI, Fla., Oct. 18—Hurricane winds up to 140 and 160 miles an hour in gusts lashed Havana today before a severe tropical storm moved out into the Gulf of Mexico and sent advance gales sweeping the Florida Keys.

A 10 a. m. weather bureau advisory said that full hurricane winds probably would be felt along the entire string of exposed keys, stretching southward from the Florida mainland, within a short time. "Very high tides" were forecast.

All of south Florida was braced for gales expected during the late morning or early afternoon. A radio report to Pan American Airways here said a number of houses were blown down in Havana and a number of small buildings at the Cuban capital's airport were flattened.

There was no immediate word, however, of any casualties. The Isle of Pines, island south of Cuba which was raked with full force yesterday, still was without communications.

Don't Burn Leaves In Streets, Mayor Declares

As a result of numerous complaints of people burning leaves in the streets, Mayor R. R. Johnson today issued a warning against such practices.

"Burning leaves on the streets is in direct violation of a city ordinance," he said, "and citizens found cleaning their properties in that manner will be subject to fines."

The mayor suggests that citizens keep the leaves on their own property to burn them there or have them hauled away.

HITLER CALLS HOME GUARDS

Declares Germany's Second All-Out Effort Must Succeed

(By Associated Press)
LONDON, Oct. 18—Adolf Hitler, observing that "just as in 1939 we are facing the enemy alone," proclaimed tonight the formation of an armed German home guard and declared: "Germany's second all-out effort must and will succeed."

Hitler's voice, which has not been heard on radio channels since shortly after the reported assassination attempt of July 20, was broadcast again from the German airways today. His decree setting up the guard was read for him for the home service of the official German news agency, DNB.

"Relying on our own force, we will not only break the enemy will of destruction, but we will throw him back again," the Hitler utterance said.

"I call on all able bodied men to fight."

The decree then announced all civilian men between 16 and 60 were ordered into the Volkssturm, an

TEAMS BEGIN SOLICITATIONS AFTER RALLY

Workers To Make Final Reports Thursday; Expect Early Success

Captains of ten teams sent their workers into the field today to raise $43,970 for Community War Fund needs during the coming year, determined to complete as much of the job as possible by Friday night.

They had received their supplies and instructions at a meeting in Memorial building last night attended by about 150. Included in their territory are Salem city, Perry and Butler townships and Washingtonville.

This area's share of the National War Fund is $70,360, with $23,370 to be raised for support of eight Salem agencies which participate in the campaign.

A woman from the rural area near Salem didn't wait until the Community War Fund campaign opened today.

She didn't want to be missed, so she made her contribution yesterday.

A National War Fund display in the Ohio Edison Co. window made its appeal to her. She gazed intently, then walked into the store and plunked down $5 for the cause.

"I don't want to be missed during the campaign," she said.

The Community Chest fund. These are the Salvation Army, Catholic Charities, Memorial building, two hospitals, Home For Aged Women, Boy Scouts and Girl Scouts.

Heading the drive are F. W. McKee as chairman with E. M. Stephenson as his assistant.

Last night's meeting officially opening the campaign was presided over by R. S. McCulloch, president of the Community Chest board. Following opening remarks, he introduced Atty. Ralph Atkinson, chairman of the National War Fund campaign in the northern part of Columbiana county and then turned the meeting over to McKee.

First Report Thursday

Stephenson outlined campaign plans in his remarks to the teams shortly after the distribution. He introduced the captains for Salem as well as Mrs. Don Weikart, captain for Washingtonville; Gler Shreve, in charge of the Damascus-Garfield territory; Lowell Whisler heading the drive in southern Perry township; and Galen Greenman Perry townships.

Captains were instructed to report Thursday morning to Mrs. Elizabeth Baker, fund secretary and teams will be assembled at 7:30 p. m. Friday in the Memorial building for final reports.

A feature of last night's meeting was a talk by Charles D. Hurrey, secretary of the international committee of the Y.M.C.A. He described the work being done to aid war prisoners as part of the National War Fund program.

Doughnuts and coffee were provided the workers last night through the courtesy of President McCulloch.

Kennel Club Program Is Planned Wednesday

Mrs. L. L. Fowler of Berkeley, Mich., and her Pathfinder dog will appear at a public meeting in the Memorial building at 8 p. m. Wednesday, officers of the Columbiana County Kennel club announced today.

The organization is sponsoring the demonstration of the Pathfinder group's work to acquaint the public with the project. Officers said the Kennel club's show in February is expected to net enough funds for the purchase and training of a Pathfinder dog for a blind person.

The demonstration and talk by Mrs. Fowler will follow a dinner at 6:30 p. m. in the Memorial building. Anyone interested may attend the program. Members of the Kennel club will attend the dinner.

ELECTION WORKERS TO MEET MONDAY

Frank R. O'Hanlon, clerk of the county board of elections, announced today, that a meeting of precinct clerks and judges chosen to tabulate the November 7 election ballots will be held for workers of this district at 8 p. m. Monday in the Memorial building.

The meeting is being conducted as a training school for election workers. Similar instruction sessions are being held throughout the county.

U.S. Ships Sink 7 Warships Of Japs, 25 Merchant Ships

(By Associated Press)
Japan's war and merchant fleets have suffered another heavy blow at the hands of American submarines, Navy Secretary Forrestal disclosed today as he reported destruction of seven additional warships and 25 merchantmen by undersea craft.

Simultaneously the secretary said that during the past four and a half months the guns of America's Third and Fifth fleets, operating against the Japanese, have sunk or damaged 965 vessels. He added that planes and flak weapons of the two fleets have shot down 1,827 planes and destroyed 1,233 aircraft since last June.

The Yank submarines boosted to 956 their bag of Japanese ships destroyed since Pearl Harbor as the secretary credited them with three destroyers, three escorts, one minelayer and 25 merchantmen of different types.

American pilots are clamping an aerial pincer on the invasion-threatening forces striking from the north, unhampered by the frightened Japanese navy, and land-based fighters making their first massed foray from the south.

BRITISH TAKE VENRAY NEAR MAAS RIVER

Allied Troops On Battlefronts Spring Into Action Once Again

(By Associated Press)
LONDON, Oct. 18—British troops captured Venray and formed a solid 10-mile front in eastern Holland 33 miles from Duisburg today, while Berlin declared half a million men were facing each other in the Netherlands ready for "a battle that may flare up at any moment."

Canadians to the west pressed back the German pocket blocking use of the great supply port of Antwerp.

Aachen still was being beaten into submission. U. S. heavy bombers again struck at Cologne 40 miles beyond it, sapping German power to move up reserves. Berlin asserted the American First army was preparing a new offensive aimed at Cologne.

The front in France sprang to action also. U. S. Third army troops in a mile gain hit within four miles of the fortress city of Metz, and French forces farther south made progress, punching within from three to five miles of two vosses passes leading to the Reich.

British Second army forces captured Venray near the Maas river, and a dispatch from Supreme headquarters said the Tommies had linked up a 10-mile front along the Venray-Deurne road.

Germans Fall Back
The Germans below the Scheide estuary, barring the water gate to Antwerp, fell back under Canadian pressure. A front dispatch said there were signs this German siege stand might be ending. Demolitions were reported in the Brekens area, stronghold of the enemy pocket, along with considerable transport movement.

All along the front progress—slow, methodical progress carved out in many cases by bayonets—was reported.

From Brekens, a German stronghold before the already liberated port of Antwerp, to Belfort, this was the picture:

(1) Lt. Gen. H. D. Crerar's Canadians have reached IJzendoorn, six miles south of Brekens, pressing on the newly formed defense line of the suicide German troops within the narrowing pocket. Supreme Allied headquarters reported bombers had attacked the sea dyke at West Kapelle on the nearby island of Walcheren.

The Community War Fund

The Community War Fund campaign which opened today offers Salem people an opportunity to support the institutions and the activities which are the real backbone of the way of life for our men and women are fighting today. The National War Fund, which shares nearly half of the $43,970 goal, provides for the welfare of our fighting forces and brings relief to the peoples of many nations ravaged by warfare. The USO, which gets the largest share of that fund, combines the services to our armed forces of welfare and recreation organizations which have become essential in maintaining morale as well as comforts.

These services will be required for a long time after Germany has been brought to her knees, and many of them may have to be expanded. They cannot be neglected now, regardless of how soon the European conflict is ended. Especially is this true of the agencies engaged in bringing relief to those peoples now being liberated by the Allied armies, people who have faith in America, and nations which must be restored to order through rehabilitation.

That part of the fund now being sought which goes to our own Community Chest agencies supports the institutions and organizations which are playing a tremendous part in keeping this community the kind our young men and women will expect to find when they return. Every one of them is deserving of the support Salem has given them in the past and must give them in this campaign if they are to continue the programs which mean so much to the entire community.

The goal of this Community War Fund campaign can be reached if everyone gives as he gave last year. That's not expecting too much from anyone.

Aimless Arguments

This campaign seems to be producing more than the usual allotment of absurdities produced by attempts at rationalization.

One example is the discussion about Mr. Roosevelt's health. His apologies apparently want us to believe that he is healthier now than he ever was before and immune, besides, to the ravages of time. They are as ridiculous in their frenzy as are those at the other extreme who obviously want to believe Mr. Roosevelt is no longer capable of continuing in office. The fact is—and it is in plain sight—that Mr. Roosevelt is getting older by the minute and showing it. If he were an ordinary business executive, his directors would be looking around for a successor, just in case, and they wouldn't be looking at Henry A. Wallace, or Harry S. Truman. Partisanship to one side, Mr. Roosevelt is asking the country to take a long chance on his health—with Sen. Truman as a consolation prize.

Another example is a whole list of futile discussions about particular issues at stake in the election, as if any particular issue could be more important than the sum of all the issues. The New York Times has capped the climax in this category, with the explanation that it favors Mr. Roosevelt for re-election because it likes his foreign policy, though it disagrees almost categorically with everything else he stands for. This is perhaps the first time in history that a responsible source has argued that a chief executive can maintain a successful foreign policy without a successful domestic policy on which to build. But it is typical of the absurdities which spring from attempts to back up wishful thoughts with compelling reasons. It seems sometimes as if the purpose of a campaign might be to keep an ordinary voter so busy trying to find the truth that he will get tired and quit looking for it.

By the Satellites They Keep

Hungary is the last of Germany's satellite states to unhitch its wagon from the swastika. So far has it fallen in its role of servitude that even the termination of hostilities finds the German masters intervening to try to force its disgraced fighting men into a little more bleeding and dying.

When this war began there was a credo of power politics based on the fallacy of numerical strength. Axis diplomats claimed a triumph because they had lined up the greater number of satellite nations and, later, captive states. Through fear, appeals to avarice and through ordinary intimidation, Germany appeared to have surpassing strength in Europe. But events have revealed something about satellites in diplomacy.

Italy, though nominally a major power, never was more than a liability; what it had to offer was more than offset by what it lacked. The Balkan states, traditionally the prize that goes to the highest bidder in every European war, Poland, and the captive countries have been looted and exploited by the Germans, but it will be surprising if historians do not conclude that they had the ultimate effect of weakening, not strengthening, the military power which committed itself to their defense because they could not defend themselves. A nation may be known by the satellites it keeps.

Fox Brought To Ground

Field Marshal Erwin Rommel's death will be mourned deeply by Germans as the loss of one of the few remaining military leaders able to command their confidence. Rommel was a good and, sometimes, a great general, but he lost all the battles he had to win to save Germany. He made Hitler look like a winner when Germany was pummeling setbacks. He was unbeatable when the odds were in his favor. Unfortunately, for Rommel and the politicians who depended on him, the odds turned. He took his lacing in Africa and fled to safety. He supervised Germany's defeat in the Allied invasion of France, but this time he couldn't escape the fate of hundreds of thousands of his own men. He was killed by the new masters and champions of the military art.

The Germans, no doubt, will erect the customary monuments and write the usual glowing tributes. It would be fitting if they were to add: Rommel wasn't good enough. Neither was Hitler. Neither, for that matter, was Germany. Germany got licked. Germany always got licked. Maybe Germany isn't as good as Germans get fooled into thinking it is between wars.

The Stars Say

For Thursday, October 19.

A FAIRLY promising day for activity in the direction of achieving high ambitions, with increased finances or credit, in which fresh and important propositions of plans may be advanced through favors, personal popularity and influence, together with a gracious yielding or agreement should opposition arise. Employ tact and ingenuity rather than force or obstinacy. Be shrewd with writings, contracts and make changes if needful. Pleasure and romance may also be anticipated.

Those whose birthday it is may anticipate a year in which there may be definite growth and expansion in attaining cherished ambitions, with tact, shrewdness and personal popularity or social prestige, rather than cut and dried business tactics. Use skill, through speech or writings, rather than for forcing critical issues, and confer with superiors of power and responsibility. There should be pleasant contacts, perhaps romantic, as well as financial and professional, if new opportunities for progress be wisely manipulated.

A child born on this day may have many qualifications for attaining cherished hopes and wishes, with those in power substantially assisting.

The Good Die Young

By James Thrasher

Somehow it was rather frightening to read of the death of Mitsuru Toyama—frightening because so few of us had ever heard of him. He died in his 90th year, carrying to his grave the unchallenged distinction of having been one of the most evil men in recorded human history.

It is impossible to catalog all his crimes here. Toyama was a professional assassin, a man who combined the bloody ruthlessness of a Black Hand leader and a gangster chief. He founded the Black Dragon society. He planned and engineered every Japanese war for the past 50 years. He controlled the courts, terrified the press, dominated the emperor. He arranged the alliance with Germany. He wiped out the peace-loving officials in the cabinet assassinations of 1932 and 1936. He was the author of the Greater East Asia Co-Prosperity Sphere. Tojo was his protégé, his hand-picked choice for war premier.

Toyama was the man who decreed Pearl Harbor. His murders, direct and indirect, must surpass those of a Hitler or a Himmler.

The evil that he did lives after him, and the last war he started will cost yet more innocent lives before it grinds his country to defeat. But at least the prime source of the Japanese poison seems to have been removed.

And millions of Americans who never before heard the name of Mitsuru Toyama can breathe a sigh of relief that the earth is at last rid of him.

Everybody seemed quite surprised at an aeronautical engineer's claim that practically anybody can learn to fly a small new civilian plane in five hours.

Well, that's all very nice. But if we didn't know that an airplane doesn't have to be backed out of a driveway or squeezed into a parking space between two other planes we'd be a lot more impressed.

Personality Test Discussed

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.
I PROPHESY that in the very near future we are to hear a good deal about the Rorschach mental test. Rorschach himself and his disciples resent calling it an intelligence quotient test, but they have not coined a good phrase to describe it. The nearest is personality, or character, or human relation test.

Dr. Clendening will answer questions of general interest only, and then only through his column.

If it does what such a description suggests it can be seen that it will be in immediate demand with the ten million young men and women who have to be fitted into civil industry, and a large number shocked by battle experience who have to be assessed so that a decision can be made as to whether they will ever be able to play their parts in the world.

The originator of the test was Hermann Rorschach, a Swiss psychiatrist who died in 1922, and who had experimented with his procedure for diagnosing the personality for 10 years. The most complete book published in America dealing with the test was published in 1942, by the University of California Press. So it is not a sudden or hare-brained idea, but has background in the experience of scientific men.

Nature of Test

I emphasize this because it doesn't sound as if it were very sensible or profound. The test consists in showing the subject a number of blots, such as children make by dropping ink on a sheet of paper and folding it. The subject tells what they look like to him, if anything, and that is all.

But its simplicity is deceptive. Rorschach showed his blots to his students, his academic friends, the janitor of the building, the patients in the state hospital—they all had meaningful experiences when looking at these calculatedly meaningless blotches.

It is claimed that a careful study and scoring of the results will show a detailed analysis of personality and guide the examiner in advising what sort of work the subject can do best.

As an example of what the test will do and how dependable it is we have the experience extending over several years at Sarah Lawrence college. The students were rated on entering college on the basis of the Rorschach test A, B, C and D. Then they were followed through their academic career. There were 23 students each classed as A and B. One of them had an academic failure. Of 16 students rated as C six had academic failures and one had to see a psychiatrist. Of 21 students rated as D six had academic failures and six had to see a psychiatrist.

Factors Involved

The test is being used not only in colleges, but also in business to fit people to the proper kind of work. It is also used extensively in the study of nervous individuals.

When one asks how such a simple test can tell anything, the question is partly answered by studying how the scoring is made. Three fundamental factors are involved. When the person tells what the blot looks like it is scored on the basis of what part of the blot suggested the answer, what determined the response, and what was the content of the responses (i. e., did the blot suggest an animal, a human, an object, etc.). Just to give one brief gross example, if Subject A cannot see anything that the blot suggests at all while B can't make up a bat or two clowns or a cloud, it is obvious

MANAGEMENT KEENER FOODS PLANT

YOU GOTTA THINK QUICK

By Stanley Paley

Copyright, 1944, NEA Service, Inc.

THE STORY: Virgil Boggio, big-time racketeer, needs legal advice from Leo Kabateck. This necessitates his telling Kabateck the inside story of his vast enterprises. Kabateck is dismayed at their extent, but can't back out since Boggio holds an incriminating paper with his signature. He is to discuss fees with Boggio the next day.

"Hello," said Boggio, "I want to talk to Tony."

There was a short pause during which he glanced at me, then he turned back to the phone.

I knew Tony by name although I'd never met him. He was one of Boggio's minor satellites and apparently he'd been trying to sell some lawyer friend of his by the name of Craig. Boggio now wanted an appointment made. While he continued talking I did some quick thinking.

Boggio hung up and turned back to me. He didn't say anything, neither did I. We each waited for the other to make the first move. Finally I did. I reached for my hat and stood up. I put out my hand.

"No hard feelings, Boggio."

"No," he said. "But you're a damned fool."

I started towards the door and I could see him staring at me just as plainly as if I had eyes in the back of my head. I expected him to stop me any moment but he didn't.

I opened the door and still Boggio didn't say anything.

I walked out, closed the door behind me and breathed deeply. There was still time to turn back and tell Boggio I'd come to his terms, but I knew I'd be sunk. After that little session he'd make me look so small that I'd merely be another stooge.

I started walking down the hall and then all of a sudden decided I couldn't throw away everything just like that. I'd bluffed and lost. There was nothing else for me to do. I stopped and was about to turn back when I heard the door open.

"Leo," said Boggio, "I want to have another word with you."

There was nothing wrong with the way my brain was functioning now. So I made a couple of concessions as a sop to Boggio's pride but still stuck to my basic demands.

"Do you want the agreement in writing?" he asked.

"I think it'll be more business-like," I said.

The wording of the contract was naturally left to me. "But write it so I can understand it," Boggio asked.

It was a comforting little document when I got through with it. It stated that on this sixth day of May, nineteen hundred and thirty-eight, an agreement had been made between Virgil Boggio, businessman, on one hand, and Leo Kabateck, attorney-at-law, on the other hand.

In return for legal advice to the Boggio enterprises, Kabateck was to receive remuneration as follows:

1) a flat sum of five thousand dollars for past services, payable immediately; 2) a monthly retainer of one thousand dollars; 3) a five per cent interest in Boggio's net profits. The contract was to run for an initial period of three years, and thereafter options on Kabateck's future services could be picked up with specified increases in salary.

After we'd both signed, Boggio wrote out a check and handed it to me. I guess I was unable to control myself that time, and the look on my face must have made him sore.

"Satisfied?" he asked.

"Sure," I answered.

"There's just one thing," he said. "What is it?"

"Leo, my young friend, you're plenty smart. We already agreed on that. But I'm no dope either. You think you put one over on me, don't you? Well take a look at this."

He pulled a slip of paper from his pocket and handed it to me. There were figures on it.

"You will notice," he continued, "that our agreement is pretty close to what I'd written here, with the exception of the five per cent interest. I was prepared to give you 10 per cent."

It must have been worth a lot to him to see my face fall. I didn't say anything for a moment and then stuck out my hand.

"I have to hand it to you, Virgil," I said.

I went down that hallway again walking on air. This was the biggest triumph of my life. He hadn't fooled me with that slip of paper. He had scribbled those figures after I'd made my first exit. I could tell because he had used my pencil which I'd forgotten on the table in the excitement of my departure. When a fellow's really smart he notices little things like that.

LEAVES FROM A WAR CORRESPONDENT'S NOTEBOOK

by Hal Boyle

WITH A U. S. TANK FORCE IN GERMANY, Oct. 12—(Delayed)—The luckiest men in the armored march through the Siegfried line north of Aachen were seven crew members of one half-track who suddenly found their vehicle had become a wastebasket for German artillery.

Their half-track caught a dud, a three-inch enemy shell, and everybody concerned is quite happy to be alive and able to tell the story. "We were moving to an assembly area near Palenberg when the Jerries started pumping over artillery," said T5 5 Louis Lancaster, Memphis, Tenn., commander of the half-track. One shell smacked into the rear of our car.

The impact hurled a heavy box of ammunition through the air and it cracked Pvt. James Holmes, Belmont, Mass., on the head, but his helmet saved him from serious injury.

"That shell struck in another box containing live grenades and when we saw it hadn't exploded we all took off," said Lancaster.

Later he found an ordnance major who removed the shell and the boys climbed back into the half-track and went to work again on the Siegfried line.

Other members of the crew included Pvt. Dave Rosenberg, Cleveland, O.

In one command post Lt. Joseph K. Still, Blackville, S. C., was eating lunch with Capt. Howard Johnson, Frankfort, N. Y., Lt. Edward Brennick, Staten Island, N. Y., and Sgt. Luther Thornton, Nashville, Tenn.

"It wouldn't be bad to get one of those million dollar wounds," Still said jokingly. "You know, one that wasn't serious but just bad enough to get you out of the front lines."

At that moment a German

75-mm armor-piercing shell cracked into the room after piercing three walls, bounced three times from the ceiling to the floor, struck him in the leg and lodged in the opposite wall. Still was only slightly hurt.

Eight medics in one armored infantry regiment had their house blown away.

Staff Sgt. Wilson Fostick, Walworth, N. Y., moved their forward dressing station into the basement of a three-story house in Ubach when the town was subjected to a terrific German artillery barrage. During lulls they would rush out into the streets, pick up wounded, and bring them in.

On the morning of the second day there was a terrific explosion. They rushed upstairs, finding daylight where the walls had been.

Furniture on the first floor still was intact, but the rest of the rest of the house was completely blasted.

"There must have been some ammunition on the second or third floor and the German shell hit it," Fostick said.

None of his men was hurt.

Extra Gas For Hunters Is Out, OPA Declares

COLUMBUS, Oct. 18—Hunters this year will get no extra gasoline rations and neither can they pool "A" coupons for a long trip.

Harold T. Welch, Columbus district OPA rationing executive, has announced.

The farthest a hunter may go from home legally is 180 miles, which with the return trip would consume his 360-mile limit for three months allowed in "A" rations, Welch said.

Furred and Fitted For Fall

NEW YORK—Coming in on the popularity wave of the fur-trimmed suit, which bows back into fashion after a long absence, is the fur-trimmed suit dress. Both stir up more excitement when they provide as flashing foils for fur, vivacious combinations of colorful wools.

Not all color against which face-framing fur is mounted for costume appeal is monotone. Color appears in prime—the kind of print you expect to see in a summer frock worn on a country club veranda—in one dramatic fur-trimmed suit dress launched in a custom-order collection. Shown at the left, you see it in the Sophie-designed black woolen, embroidered with yellow jacquard dots, which makes the one-piece dress and the lining for the boxy gold, woolen jacket, with black Persian lamb revers.

Fur trimming for a great-lady suit of this type is apt to be any kind that you can name, with glamorous pelts, such as ermine, mink, lynx, Persian lamb, leopard and ocelot taking top billing. Running a close second are nutria and beaver.

Used to step up the luxurious look of the jacket and skirt suit, fur often pops up as a heart-warming waistcoat, cuts a big swathe when it lines the jacket. Newcomer style in suits with a fur-lined jacket is the lumberjack, typical of which is the Montecarlo, designed model shown at the right. Brown South American lamb is used to line the lumberjack top of topaz-colored woolen, which is posed against a dark brown woolen skirt.

Do you like the painting reproduced above a thousand dollars' worth? Judges at Pittsburgh's Carnegie Institute did, for that's the amount of the first prize they awarded to its painter, Yasuo Kuniyoshi, Japanese-born American of New York City. Called "Room 110," the painting is a pale still life arrangement of an umbrella, a rose, a photograph and a bunch of grapes.

Millions Of Freight Cars Kept Rolling Over Nation By AAR

By CHARLOTTE G. MOULTON, United Press Correspondent

WASHINGTON—Did you ever watch the red ribbon of a freight train wind along a green hillside, each of its scores of cars bearing the name of a different railroad, and wonder how they all got back to their home roads? How does a railroad keep account of its wandering freight cars?

Union Pacific—Boston and Maine—Atchafalaya, Topeka & Santa Fe—Atlantic Coast Line—Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul—the cars go clicking by long after the chuffing of the engine has died away in the distance. They are returned to their place of origin, either empty or loaded, under the direction of the Association of American Railroads.

Each Has "Individuality" Big, jovial Warren C. Kendall, chairman of the AAR's Car Service Division, can tell you all about it. In terms that are understandable to persons other than 25-year railroad veterans, although he himself falls within that classification. Every one of the 2,000,000 freight cars in the country is in the AAR's Equipment Register, listed by size, shape, number and other characteristics. Each freight car "has its own individuality," Kendall says.

All the country's Class I railroads have signed a car service agreement with the AAR setting up rules for handling of freight cars on "foreign" roads. A car belonging to an adjacent road must be sent home when it is unloaded, whether there is a return load available or not, and if empty it has to go by the nearest junction. If the car belongs to a distant road, it should be loaded in the general direction of "home." A road may not send its own cars to "foreign" duty if other cars are available.

An incentive to comply with these provisions is the charge of a dollar per car a railroad has to pay for every day railroad-owned equipment is on its tracks, in use or idle.

Pay Private Owners

Cars not owned by railroads rate different treatment. Fifty private concerns such as the Pacific Fruit Express, Fruit Growers Express, Merchants Dispatch, Inc., and packers like Cudahy and Armour own some 139,000 refrigerator cars. Oil companies and oil car lines own about 144,000 tank cars. The railroads pay for the use of these cars on a mileage basis and they are routed in accordance with the owners' instructions.

How do railroads know the location of their straying freight cars? After cars are switched through a junction they go out over a different railroad from that which brought them in. As the new train is being made up the yardmaster analyzes it, listing each car by number, destination, the road it has just left and the one on which it will continue its journey. Gondola cars, stock cars, flat cars, refrigerator, tank and box cars—all are listed on a form which is sent to the accountant's office of the outgoing road. If the train will move on the tracks of the New York Central, for example, the list is sent to that line's clearing office in Buffalo.

Peg for Each Line

In that office is a set of wall pegs, one for every railroad in the country. The long list of freight cars is cut into strips, one car to a strip, and these are hooked to the proper pegs. Then a clerk takes down the strips and copies the notations into a book. A new volume is started for each road every month.

Thus does the New York Central know exactly how many freight cars are on its tracks, where they are, and where they are going. Owners of all the "foreign" cars are appraised of the location of their property by carbon copies of the slips. The records of short roads are usually correct up to 36 hours of actual movement, Kendall says. On the longer lines, the period ranges from three to four days.

Kendall thinks freight car movements are one of the most fascinating things about railroad operations. According to AAR estimates, he says, if the roads cooperate 83 per cent with car service division rules, the needs of the country's shippers will be met satisfactorily.

Have a Coca-Cola = The family welcomes you

... or greeting new and old friends

Unexpected visitors can be expected in wartime. Sons bring home their wives. Soldiers on furlough drop in without notice. New neighbors come to call. With wartime shortages, a simple but hearty welcome is best. It's what you share in friendliness, not what you have, that counts. There's no more friendly greeting than Have a "Coke". And you can play host on a moment's notice when you have Coca-Cola on hand in your refrigerator. Have a "Coke" says Welcome... makes new and old friends feel at home with you and yours.

Virginia's Hank Walker Named Best Lineman Of The Week

WINS HONORS IN A. P. POLL

Grabs Laurels Because He Was Big Factor In Win Over Pre-Flight

By TED MEIER
NEW YORK, Oct. 18—Virginia's Hank Walker, fullback turned end, won honors today as the outstanding football lineman of the week in the third weekly Associated Press poll of the season. He joins Press Harding, California center, and End Jack Russell of Randolph field who ranked first in the previous polls.

Because of Walker's performance Virginia scored a major upset by holding the highly touted North Carolina Pre-Flighters to a 13-13 deadlock. Walker, a 180-pounder from Griffin, Ga., is a navy trainee who played the 1943 season with South Carolina.

"Walker played one of the prettiest defensive games I have ever seen," asserted Coach Frank Murray, of Virginia. "He was the major factor in our holding Pre-Flight to 92 yards rushing. He is qualified to play any position."

Texas Comes Through

Two other linemen, 18-year-old Hubert Bechtel of Texas, and 19-year-old John Johnson of the Alameda (Calif.) Coast Guard, were singled out for praise by their coaches. Bechtel smeared so many Oklahoma plays the boys in the pressbox called him the fifth man in the Sooners' backfield. Johnson, a San Francisco lad, playing in his first big time game, helped Alameda defeat the favored March field, 20-20, by catching two forward passes for touchdowns.

Clarence Esser of Wisconsin, Tom Kane of Tulane, Vic Schleich of Iowa Seabawks, and Jim Turner, College of Pacific, impressed at tackle while H. J. Nichols of Rice, Bob Bobelstein of Tennessee, Bill Hatcher of California and Jack Fathauer of Iowa State stood out at guard.

Tex Warrington of Auburn, Felto Prewitt of Tulsa and Joe Winkler of Purdue drew the most praise at center.

Other outstanding linemen of the week:

Ends—Dave Hirschler, California; Jim Dorough, Georgia Tech; Paul Robeson, Cornell; Bob Ravensberg, Indiana; Lyle Colerick, Nebraska; Frank Bauman, Purdue; Ben Moss, Auburn; Stuckel, Pennsylvania; Darnold Snell, Auburn; W. D. Garrett, Mississippi State; Guards—J. J. Stanowicz, Army; Jeff Hustis, Syracuse; John Bayle, Penn; Groh, Colgate.

Centers—Ed. Holsinger, Georgia Tech; Bob Lissie, Minnesota.

SPORT CHATTER

By HUGH FULLERTON, Jr.

NEW YORK, Oct. 18—From Pelelli in the Pacific, T. Sgt. Billy Goodrich, former Brooklyn sports writer, sends these words: "The results of the World Series just came in and there were more Marines rooting for the Browns than us sweating at the plight of the boys. That seems incredible. It is the truth. One Marine, Eric Brown's rooter, took things wild that after the Cardinals' second game he said: 'Why, I'd like to murder every Brownie and Cardinals fan I see.' That sounds like a half dozen major league players and assorted players and spasmens will face when they are on the war zone this winter. I am all accounts, the G. I. baseball fans have managed to hear about most of the doings of the war, but they all want to know all the details and, most of all, why they happened."

IN REVIEW

These quotes give you an idea of a half dozen major league players and assorted players and spasmens will face when they are on the war zone this winter. I am all accounts, the G. I. baseball fans have managed to hear about most of the doings of the war, but they all want to know all the details and, most of all, why they happened."

SAMPLE QUESTIONNAIRE

Luke Sewell, the only representative of the World Series contestants now on the list, will hear something like this: "What happened to the Browns in the Series? How did they beat out the Tigers and Yankees in that close finish? How about that scrap with the Senators when Bob Ortiz and Tom Turner swapped blows after the Browns had been accused of 'riding' Washington's Cuban players too vigorously? How come the Senators, after feuding with the Browns, virtually handed St. Louis the pennant by knocking off Detroit? And what happened to Washington and its Cuban delegation, anyway, finishing in the cellar after being picked near the top?"

UGOWANUS GOSSIP

Leo Durocher may have a hard time answering some of these Dodge fans on such questions as: How do you expect to win a pennant with a bunch of 16-year old nobbies? What was the idea of getting rid of Fritz Ostermueler, who had such a good year after he landed with the Pirates? How about Dixie Walker's batting? Weren't you threatening to trade him last winter? What will our Bums do next year?

THINGS COOKING IN TRI-COUNTY'S REMAINING CARD

Columbiana - Boardman Game Just the Start of Some Hot Encounters

Things are definitely "cooking" in the Tri-County League.

These things are Columbiana, Boardman and East Palestine and the cooking sums up to the respective wranglings of the coaches of the three schools.

These mentors—John Cabas of the Clippers, Rib Allen of Boardman and George Reid of the Bulldogs—are certainly hard at work with their wranglings. All three are concerned with one major problem now and that is how to manipulate a league championship for their team.

Just now the league standings show Columbiana on top of the heap with three straight league wins over Lisbon, Louisville and Minerva. Boardman has two loop victories, one over Lisbon and another over Louisville. The Bulldogs have taken two wins also, defeating Lisbon and Sebring.

All Beaten Once
All three teams have been beaten once in their five games. East Palestine by Salem, Boardman by Youngstown East and Columbiana by Leetonia. This doesn't affect league standings, but does put the three on an equal par from another angle.

The telling games will begin with the Columbiana-Boardman clash in Boardman Saturday. Allen's charges will be slight underdogs by virtue of their close, 7-0, win over Louisville. The edge goes to Columbiana because they defeated Louisville 26-0 in an earlier try.

Regardless of which team wins Saturday's game, both have to go on to meet the East Palestine Bulldogs later in the year. Predicting the Bulldogs can get by Minerva Friday and their other loop games, these meetings will again be telling times in league play.

Fans of this district can expect some red-hot encounters before this Friday. Tri-County league season is over. The Boardman-Clipper clash this week is only the beginning. Here is the way they stand just now:

house-to-house fighting and plunged on two miles southeast of the town, which itself is eight miles from the Reich frontier.

Associated Press Correspondent Ned Nordness, with force, reported that American armored columns on the right flank had bridged the Canal de Doorn.

(3) Gen. Eisenhower's communiqué described the fighting on the First army front as a mopping up procedure. There was mopping up inside Aachen, which has set a pattern of punishment for German cities which resist the Allied advance, and mopping up to the northeast of "segments of the Siegfried line" to clear the way for the next drive.

The German radio, finally acknowledging Aachen has been encircled, described the fighting there as surpassing everything that has gone before in this war, and said flatly that Eisenhower "is planning an all-out offensive on Cologne after capturing Aachen."

(4) U. S. Third army infantry advanced nearly a mile north of Aachen-Moselle to within four miles of Metz, another big fortress industrial city.

(5) In the Vosges foothills, the Allied communiqué reported progress just south of the road junction at Bruyeres and northeast of Le Thillot despite stubborn enemy resistance and strong counter-attacks.

Two Trucks Involved In Route 62 Collision

Two large trucks collided on Route 62 near the Mahoning river bridge, at 2:30 p. m. yesterday, forcing one vehicle, driven by John Fleke of Butler, Pa., over an embankment, spilling its load of steel coils.

State patrolmen said the truck driven by Fleke, rammed another driven by Virgil Blythe of Beloit from the rear and then went over the embankment after the left front fender had struck Blythe's truck.

No one was injured and neither truck was damaged severely.

THE GERMANY OF THE FUTURE?

WHAT TO DO WITH GERMANY after the war has already roused a conflict of views ranging from the Morgenthau plan for an agricultural Germany to the Hull-Stimson theories of control and supervision of German industry to the Stalin desire for reparations, even if the pay-off comes in the form of goods. But in the matter of territorial trimming of Germany and of eventual boundaries there appears to be some relative agreement and this map details those changes that have been in the forefront. International control for the Ruhr and Rhineland areas (1) with the rich coal regions of the Saar going to France. The Kiel Canal (2), across the Danish Peninsula, would come under international control, with Russia being assured a share, thus providing a link between the Baltic and the North Sea and a route to the Atlantic. Also Denmark would be given a portion of Schleswig-Holstein just north of the canal. The Netherlands (3) would get a strip of Northwestern Germany in return for the sections of Holland flooded by the enemy. East Prussia (4) to be divided between Poland and Russia. Silesia and the Breslau industrial zones (5) would go to Poland as would some other sections east of the Oder River (as indicated on map). The area shown in black would comprise the Germany of the future—that is, if the proposals are adopted. (International) directly in the hands of the service director, and said it was his duty and not council's to see that proper man-power was kept at the station if it was needed.

Councilman H. W. Pealy appealed to council to heed the warnings of Horn and Shafer and maintain the safety crew at the station, saying:

"This matter is no petty political squabble. This means much to Salem. We never know when death may strike, and should it strike at the station an extra man should be there to take up the slack. If no one were there the station might go unmanned for hours before the discovery of an accident might be made."

Service Director Wilson explained his viewpoint in asking the change. He stated that the hazards and emergencies existing were no greater than on any job and pointed out various man-power shortages in his department. He said he could have used the laborers on the six man station crew to good advantage time and time again, but for the restrictions of the present law.

Men Always Available

Wilson said other men were always available by telephone in case of any emergencies and pointed out instances when he and other employees had been summoned by phone.

City Engineer F. S. Barckhoff explained difficulties he has encountered at the pumping station and called for council's creation of the position of chief operator so responsibility for work can be centralized and controlled.

Service Director Wilson agreed with Barckhoff on this move and requested that council take such action.

The roll call, taken after the discussions, found Pealy and Shafer voting against the measure and Wentz, Vincent, Cavanaugh and Hanna voting its passage. Councilman Charles Reutman was absent.

An ordinance transferring $50,000 into the reservoir fund from the waterworks fund was passed after suspension of the rules following a first reading. The measure, Wentz explained, was a transfer to facilitate bookkeeping on the reservoir project now getting under way.

Seeks Temporary Fireman

Police Chief Ralph Steffer and Safety Director Curtis Phillips reported that preliminary work had been started on installation of the new two-way police radio. The radio will be installed within two weeks, they said.

Fire Chief Vincent Malloy asked that council enact legislation to give him authority to appoint a temporary fireman to fill the vacancy which will be created with the resignation of Fireman James Groner on Nov. 1.

It was explained that civil service commission examinations and final appointment may take from six weeks to two months. Council moved to hold a special meeting Oct. 24 to consider proper action.

Vote Health Board Fund

Councilman Vincent moved that an ordinance be drafted to transfer $220 into the health department fund. This action came as a result of a joint meeting between council and the health board last week at which time it was pointed out to council the need for the additional money. Council had previously refused to grant the money to the health office for extra clerk hire.

Mayor Johnson's monthly report showed an income to the city of $278.50 for the month of September. Building permits netted $3, licenses $6, city fines $40, state patrol cases $122.50 and city costs $61.30.

Council decided to postpone its next meeting one night, meeting of Nov. 8, instead of Nov. 7, because of the election.

READ THE WANT COLUMNS

The War Today

By DeWitt MacKenzie

Supporting the idea of impending upheaval is the intense Allied bombing of the great Rhinisch cities and communications. Cologne in particular has come in for some of the most concentrated bombing ever seen.

Keep your eye on that sector from Aachen north to Arnhem. It's not a vital question of supplies may be the crux of Eisenhower's problem in engineering a great attack. The Allies need more harbor facilities near the scene of the probable breakthrough. The Belgian port of Antwerp, now in our hands, would answer this description but for the fact that German guns in the Dutch territory menace it. The hard-hitting and efficient Canadian First army is now engaged in removing this threat.

Over on the eastern front the Germans claim that Red forces have opened a double-barreled drive against East Prussia. The Russians are reported smashing at the "sacred German soil" from Lithuania and from the south above Warsaw. This latter operation also aims at turning the German Vistula line.

Hitler's hold on the Balkans is shattered. Already his troops are believed to have evacuated most of Greece and Yugoslavia. His position in Hungary—military shield for the Danubian gateway into Austria—is impossible, due to destruction by Adm. Horthy's government. The country is in chaos, with civil strife between pro-Nazis and anti-Nazis. And the Red army sweeps southwards towards Budapest.
